

Camping Chair — Buying Report (June 2026, v5)

For: Mix of car-camping / festivals / garden + occasional carrying. Comfort is the #1 priority. Body: 6 ft, 13 stone (~82.5 kg), long torso / shorter legs. Requirement (firmed up): a single chair with the footrest BUILT IN — buy one unit, done, not "chair + bolt-on footstool". Must also avoid the twist-lock recline levers on the user's current zero-gravity chair (found impractical). Tall back, comfortable, max £200, bought from Amazon.co.uk.

Why this version: Earlier drafts recommended a Vango Hampton DLX plus a separate clip-on footstool. You've since said you want the footrest integrated into the one chair, not as an extra — so the pick has changed.

The single-unit answer: Outwell Catamarca Lounger — £73.99

One chair. Footrest built in. No levers. Nothing else to buy.

Spec	Detail	Why it fits you
Footrest	Built-in — rises automatically as you lean back	Integrated into the one unit; no twist-levers like your current chair
Recline	Lean-back lounger action (upright dining → reclined)	Simple, hands-free-ish — the mechanism gripe is gone
Back height	116 cm (tall)	Supports your long torso up to the shoulders
Seat height	45 cm · capacity 125 kg	Ample for 82.5 kg; easy in/out
Extras	Cup holder, wide armrests, folds in seconds, carry feel ~6 kg	Festival/garden/car ready
Fabric	300×600D woven polyester (firm, not foam-padded)	The one compromise — see below
Price	£73.99 (Amazon.co.uk) · ASIN B0BWJY8JNQ	~£126 under budget

Outwell Catamarca Lounger — Amazon.co.uk

The one honest trade-off: it's a firm woven-polyester seat, not a plush foam-padded one. It's comfortable in a sun-lounger way (taut, supportive, breathable), but if you want extra cushioning you can throw a £10–15 seat pad on top — optional, not required; the chair is complete as a single unit.

Why this is the right call (the trade-off, explained)

You asked for three things at once: (1) one integrated unit, (2) a footrest, (3) no twist-levers — plus comfort and a tall back. Under £200, here's the lie of the land:

If you want...	You get...	Verdict
One unit + built-in footrest + no levers	Outwell Catamarca Lounger (firm woven fabric)	The answer
One unit + built-in footrest + plush foam padding	...only zero-gravity recliners — which use the twist-lock levers you're replacing	Rejected
Foam-padded + footrest + no levers	...a padded chair (Westfield/Vango Hampton) + a SEPARATE leg rest	Two items, not one unit

So a single, foam-padded, lever-free chair with a built-in footrest essentially doesn't exist under £200 — the padded ones split the footrest off, and the integrated-footrest ones are lever-type zero-gravity. The Catamarca Lounger is the cleanest real-world fit for "buy this one unit."

Other single-unit options (footrest included in the one chair)

- Vango Ventura Camping Chair with Foot Rest — built-in (removable) footrest, cup holder, adjustable armrests. Older/simpler design with a lower back than the Catamarca, but a true one-unit-with-footrest. Price ~£60–80, verify live. Amazon.co.uk B0064M6FE8
- EcoBargains Deluxe Reclining Camping Chair with Foot Rest — single package: reclining backrest + adjustable leg rest, drink holder, magazine pocket, wide 57 cm seat, high back. Budget, lesser-known brand. EcoBargains
- GCI Outdoor Legz-Up Lounger — built-in folding footrest + 4 backrest positions in one unit, but ~113 kg rating and patchy UK stock. Worth a look if the Catamarca's fabric puts you off.

What I've dropped (and why)

- Vango Hampton DLX + footstool (the old top pick) — lovely padded chair and a clip-on footrest, but that's two items. You ruled this out.
- Westfield Advancer ErgoFit (£99–145) — properly padded (3D mesh), adjustable headrest, 7-position recline — but its footrest (Focus Leg Rest) is a separate accessory. Same problem.
- Zero-gravity recliners (your current style) — built-in footrest, but the twist-lock levers are exactly what you're getting away from.
- Helinox / Nemo — no footrest at all (Helinox), or over budget on Amazon UK (Nemo Stargaze ~£250).

Decision shortcut

- Buy this one unit → Outwell Catamarca Lounger, £73.99. Built-in auto-rising footrest, no levers, tall back, cup holder. Add a £10–15 seat pad later only if you want more cushion.
- If you specifically need foam padding and will accept it not being one unit → go back to the Vango Hampton DLX (£70.61) + clip-on footstool (~£40) from v4.
- Tighter budget / simpler → Vango Ventura (~£60–80).

Caveats / confidence

- Amazon prices move — Catamarca Lounger confirmed £73.99 (ASIN B0BWJY8JNQ); re-check at checkout.
- Fabric expectation: the Catamarca Lounger is firm woven polyester, not foam-padded — set expectations accordingly; it's sun-lounger comfortable, not armchair-plush.
- Vango Ventura live Amazon price wasn't pinned down this session — verify before buying.
- Capacity is a non-issue for you (every option here clears 82.5 kg with large margin).

Key sources

- Outwell Catamarca Lounger (spec + footrest mechanism): outwell.com/en-gb/ecommerce/camping-furniture/camping-chairs/catamarca-lounger · amazon.co.uk/dp/B0BWJY8JNQ
- Vango Ventura: amazon.co.uk/Vango-Ventura-Camping-Chair/dp/B0064M6FE8
- Westfield Advancer ErgoFit (footrest is separate Focus Leg Rest): standartcaravans.com/product/westfield-performance-focus-leg-rest-for-performance-series-chairs
- EcoBargains reclining chair w/ footrest: ecobargains.co.uk/product/reclining-camping-deck-chair-grey